This approach is often called as Universit Psychoanalysis proposed by Sigmund Freud. Theory about human psychological Universit can be applied in analyzing characters in literature. Since self-actualization deals it as with human behavior and psychology, it will be appropriate to apply Psychological Approach. Moreover, humanistic theory can be regarded also since the writer uses Carl Rogers's personality theory as the basic of the analysis. The writer also elaborates University Jim Morrison character as the main object in this study with Carl Rogers's self-University actualization theory, which achieve the characteristic of fully functioning person. Universit2.1.1 Self Concept The self-concept is our image of what we are, what we should be, and what we would like to be. As the self emerges, child develop a need for Universitive regard. This need is universal and persistent. It includes acceptance, love, Sitas and approval from other people, most notably from their parents. According to Rogers (1959), positive regard is crucial to personality development. If the parents Universi do not offer positive regard, then the child's innate tendency toward actualizations it and development of the self-concept will be hampered. Child perceive parental disapproval of their behavior as disapproval of their newly developing self. If this Universit occurs frequently, child will cease to strive for actualization and development. They will act in ways that will bring positive regard from others, even if these actions are Universitinconsistent with their self-concept (cited in Schultz, 2011). Universit2.1.2 Self Actualization Universitas BraHumans have one motives to actualize their self, to complete one's potential sitas and achieve the highest level of human being they can.
